

Trainer Recommended Products: Dog Tested, Dog Approved!

These are our current favorite dog toys, puzzles, and training tools. We recommend that these toys be rotated. They should not be out and available all the time. Give your dog one or two toys at a time and keep them out of sight when not in use.

We also recommend tossing out your dog's bowl and only feeding them with interactive toys! Why waste a great learning opportunity by giving your dog a bowl of food that they will wolf down in one minute flat? We want to make your dog (especially puppies) a puzzle/chew toy-aholic!

There are hundreds of these toys on the market and it can be confusing. We constantly research new products and have the BIDT dogs test them out. We don't want them to be too easy, too hard, or easy to destroy. We also like the toys that you can make more difficult as your dog learns the game. You must begin by making all the toys as easy as possible; if they are too hard your dog will give up. You may also find it necessary to use high value and odiferous food to help get them started.
